Worksite Labs Helps Companies Meet Federal Testing Mandate

LOS ANGELES, CA – Nov. 5, 2021 – All employers with 100 or more employees have until January 4 to ensure their workers are vaccinated or tested at least weekly for Covid-19 under the Occupational Safety and Health Administration’s emergency temporary standard implementing the regulation takes effect today. Worksite Labs has helped employers provide COVID-19 safe work environments by providing onsite COVID-19 testing solutions for the past year. Co-founder and CEO Gary Frazier addresses employers’ concerns about how to meet the new mandate with minimal disruption to the workplace.

“Vaccinations and testing are essential mitigation strategies that keep the workplace and schools open,” stated Fraizer. “However, we cannot let COVID-19 distract businesses and schools from their missions. Instead, the healthcare industry needs to change.”

Frazier is disrupting the US diagnostic industry by bringing trained medical staff and CLIA-certified labs directly to places of business. The decentralized business model eliminates the cost, time and inefficiencies of sending collected specimens off-site to mega-labs for processing. As a result, Worksite Labs guarantees customers 98-99% accurate PCR test results in as little as 90 minutes at a fraction of the cost.

“Businesses need to protect employees and our communities from COVID-19 transmission and variants while also freeing their personnel to focus on their job,” explains Frazier. “Worksite Labs can manage test screening and compliances for businesses. It’s time to get America moving again.”
